One Plucky Female Pharmacist + One High-Society Naval Officer = Romance--and Danger

For plucky Lillian Avery, America's entry into World War II means a chance to prove herself as a pharmacist in Boston. The challenges of her new job energize her. But society boy Ensign Archer Vandenberg's attentions only annoy--even if he is her brother's best friend.

During the darkest days of the war, Arch's destroyer hunts German U-boats in vain as the submarines sink dozens of merchant ships along the East Coast. Still shaken by battles at sea, Arch notices his men also struggle with their nerves--and with drowsiness. Could there be a link to the large prescriptions for sedatives Lillian has filled? The two work together to answer that question, but can Arch ever earn Lillian's trust and affection?

Sarah Sundin brings World War II to life, offering readers an intense experience they won't soon forget.

Bonnie Skelton:

As a scholar exactly feel bored to be able to read. If their teacher inquired them to go to the library in order to make a summary for some guide, they are complained. Just very little students that have reading's soul or real their passion. They just do what the teacher want, like asked to the library. They go to there but nothing reading critically. Any students feel that reading is not important, boring and also can't see colorful pictures on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Books are very important for you. As we know that on this period of time, many ways to get whatever we want. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore, this Anchor in the Storm (Waves of Freedom) can make you experience more interested to read.
