In the future, the United States adopts three statutes: The Inescapable Instinct (man has no control of his actions outside of his DNA), The Mendel Doctrine (society is free to choose its members) and the Ethereal Mandate (nothing may be legislated or established that is not grounded in science.) Based on the Inescapable Instinct, genes are determined to be Welcome, or Undesirable based on a propensity for murder. Under the Mendel Doctrine, embryos are tested and aborted should Undesirable genes be found. Those whose genes are determined post-partum to be Undesirable are labeled as “Janus” and placed under a state of constant surveillance called The Watch. If they engage in any violent behavior, they are arrested and executed.

Julie Benzer, a dance instructor, has been determined to be Janus. She is kidnapped by a group wishing to overturn the laws against the overwhelming popular support they enjoy. They believe that free will, banned as unprovable under the Ethereal Mandate, is powerful enough to break the Inescapable Instinct. She believed in these statutes until the moment she is told she has run afoul of them and must decide whether to fight or run. No matter what she does, she will be pursued by Watchmen and their leaders, the unsettling Suits, who believe in ridding her and her kind from the world.
